2015 Girl Scout Leadership Institute - Special Guest Speaker

Tori Molnar is an 18 year old entrepreneur, writer, and executive producer/co-host of upcoming reality entrepreneurship competition show, House of Business. At just 13, Tori founded Utoria, an entrepreneurship empowerment company for young women. She's had to overcome her fair share of obstacles, from the early death of her father to being diagnosed with Cerebral Palsy, but she never let that hold her back from reaching her goals. Today, Tori spends most days tasting the most delicious snacks on earth for her start-up, Bars & Bites, where she curates all-natural food products from small producers, and tending to her duties as Editor-In-Chief at it's sister company, Bites Media.

There's MORE!

Smart Transitions will have speakers who will offer sessions that cover a wide range of topics such as developing your personal brand, "must knows" about social media and new things coming up in app world, how to make decisions that work for you and tips that will help you start thinking about a career path.

Etiquette (more than knowing what fork to use!) sessions will be offered by Nicole Carry and Linda Dyer to help you navigate the business world and those times when you need to know how to work a room with pizzazz. Then you can use your new skills at a special themed luncheon – Career Café - where you'll meet and lunch with women leaders in the community from business, education and government.

But it won't be all work and no play, because you'll see – and be part of - demonstrations to help you learn belly dancing, hip hop moves, Zumba dancing and gymnastics. Be part of a Think Tank and a Shark Tank! Then chill and visit exhibits at Nauticus followed by an overnight on the Wisconsin battleship.

The cost for this extreme leadership weekend is only $150.00 and includes all meals, activities and overnight accommodations. Financial assistance is available. For more information, contact Jacqueline Brooks at jacquelineb@gsgcc.org
